Income matters

And we know income!

The benefits of income investing

To meet the different financial goals of a growing number of investors, investing for income has never been more important. In a world of shifting market dynamics and low interest rates, attractive sustainable income is also getting harder to find.

Income has always been recognised as a critical component of most investment portfolios. In addition to generating consistent income streams, the right mix of income strategies can provide investors with the potential for sustainable long-term growth.

By drawing on a diverse range of income sources, from equities and bonds to alternative investments such as real estate and infrastructure, asset managers can enhance portfolio diversification across asset classes and geographies, lowering overall volatility and providing smoother returns for investors.

Reasons to invest in income-generating strategies

1. Income payouts
 2. Capital growth potential
 3. Diversification benefits

Why Columbia Threadneedle Investments for income investing?

Columbia Threadneedle Investments is a global asset manager with a strong heritage in income investing across both traditional and alternative asset classes. Our specialist teams use tried and tested investment approaches to deliver attractive, sustainable returns for clients.

Sustainability of income

We look for long-term consistency and durability of income from investments. Aiming for the highest level of income today is a mistake if it jeopardises total return tomorrow.

Total return approach

Our approach seeks to deliver yield without chasing it. Portfolio managers aim to maximise return per unit of risk within a total return framework to deliver consistent returns for clients.

Research intensity

Behind every investment, you'll find original, independent analysis powered by our research experts. Responsible Investment (RI) principles are key and, with our proprietary RI tools, add real value to investment decisions.

Threadneedle equity income strategies

Equities continue to be a popular choice for investors. The broad range of businesses on offer and the familiarity of many of the companies make this market an attractive option for novices and highly sophisticated investors alike. However, in times of crisis, one key area of investor concern is on the ability of companies to pay a dividend.

As equity income investors, we prefer companies that can deliver stable and growing dividends over the medium to long term, and that can do so without compromising their balance sheet, the growth potential of the business or indeed their broader social impact. We believe that this approach will be able to deliver strong risk-adjusted returns for our clients across our wide range of global, regional and single country equity income strategies.

“Income should be core to any investor’s portfolio. We believe our compelling suite of income strategies cater to a range of risk appetites and distribution requirements.”

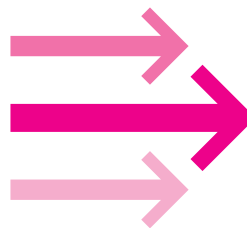

– RICHARD COLWELL
Head of UK Equities

Threadneedle fixed income strategies

Across the range of fixed income markets can be found a wide array of risk and return characteristics, from traditional asset classes of investment grade and high yield credit, through to more specialist areas that include emerging markets, securitised debt and social bonds.

The attraction of each area can change as economic and credit cycles progress. Our portfolio managers therefore pursue a flexible and dynamic allocation approach to enable them to seize investment opportunities as they arise, while minimising downside risks. Our proprietary risk rating system enables analysts to efficiently communicate an issuer's risk profile and supports rigorous relative value debates that help portfolio managers to determine their final portfolio positions.

“We don’t follow the crowd.
We focus on identifying changes in key catalysts and risks.”

Threadneedle multi-asset income strategies

Investment returns from individual asset classes can vary significantly over time, with each asset class offering a different risk and return profile depending on the economic environment. By actively allocating across a mix of assets, the strategies managed by our multi-asset experts provide a 'one stop shop' investment solution for investors that can deliver attractive levels of income with less volatility than equities.

At a time where yields across many asset classes are low, our multi-asset income strategies can provide a well-diversified, cost-effective solution for investors seeking a good level of income while keeping volatility in check, irrespective of market conditions.

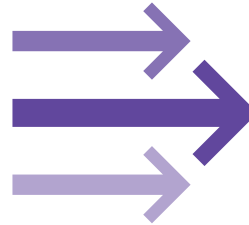

“Our multi-asset income strategies provide a cost-effective solution for investors seeking quality, sustainable income while keeping volatility in check.”

– MAYA BHANDARI
Portfolio Manager, Multi-Asset

Threadneedle European Sustainable Infrastructure strategy

The long-term nature of core infrastructure assets and their stable, often inflation-linked income characteristics match the longevity and total return requirements of institutional investors' portfolios. In a low interest rate environment coupled with increased volatility, infrastructure looks well positioned to provide a source of defensive, uncorrelated income and capital appreciation.

We pursue a dynamic portfolio construction approach centred around macroeconomic sensitivities to enable us to achieve a resilient, well-diversified portfolio, which can weather economic storms. Sustainability is at the heart of our strategy, with a strong conviction that targeting positive outcomes and managing ESG risks will allow us to deliver resilient, long-term financial returns.

“Our aim is to create a virtuous circle. The investment should improve the economy and society while maximising value for different stakeholders across the lifecycle of the assets.”

– HEIKO SCHUPP
Global Head of Infrastructure
